

Authentic Leadership

– Communication and Relations

Go for Authentic Leadership?

How do you really want to be as a leader and as a person? How do you reach your goals? Are you able to make real change? Do you often feel stuck in time pressure and decision making, tasks, stress and old patterns? We often seek answers and tools from outside ourselves – in Connective, we believe the answers and the resources are inside each of us.

Authentic Leadership is about releasing and building your full potential as a leader and as a human being.

Today's business and leadership environment is characterized by high speed, massive amount of information, high expectations, time and earnings pressure, and a high degree of uncertainty. Dealing with this reality requires us to be agile, pro-active, balanced and able to respond in the moment – in essence using our full potential.

For you personally, Authentic Leadership training will focus on unlocking your inner resources and power, and for your organization and projects it will lead to massive improvement on growth, results, creativity, sustainability, and well-being.

At this program you will

- Increase your ability to have impact, respond and take action
- Condition yourself mentally and emotionally to create significant results
- Understand and master human relational dynamics
- Increase well-being for you and your team
- Connect to your passion, purpose, motivation and enthusiasm
- Achieve sustainability and growth, through authenticity and vulnerability
- Discover the patterns which holds you back and which makes you take action
- Develop your skills and ability to communicate
- Get insight into tools of conflict resolution

About the Program

Our approach and methodology

Our methodology working with Authentic Leadership is well documented and rooted in the Developmental Psychology and a Psychotherapeutic approach. The psychological focus is emotional, relational and existential - you get awareness at different levels looking at your patterns, reactions and possibilities. We work in a dialogical field using in-depth coaching and experiential learning, combined with simple models, reflection and feedback. This way of working makes the anchoring of new awareness and learning more solid.

At this course you will work with yourself and your leadership on several levels. Most leaders we meet, come with a rational focus which include structure, skills, performance, knowledge and goals - this belongs in what we call the professional and organizational levels. Here the Authentic Leadership training will offer you new and innovative perspectives, based on new models and diving deep into your current challenges.

We introduce and put high emphasis on the levels, which can be described as "below the surface". They are the relational personal and emotional levels, where focus is on the more irrational aspects of leadership – not so visible, but certainly present. This includes emotions, relation dynamics, conflicts, behavioral patterns, beliefs and cultural assumptions. Our experience is, insights in these levels with Authentic Leadership, will create developmental step changes in your leadership.

This structure is spread over a period of 4-6 months. The full course will be in the same group of 6-8 leaders from different organizations and the coaching in between will be an individual 1½ hour session.

We believe authenticity in both life and leadership is the key to creativity, growth, well-being and great results. The key values and fundament of Connective are quality, orderliness, dynamic and trust.

Being connected to our core, inner rightness and values, at the same as we are relationally connected to our environment – this is the key to authenticity – and therefore Connective.
